

Mental Quirks

It's hard to grow up and function in a highly mechanized and technically advanced society, without having at least a couple of strange character traits or mental quirks. It could also be said that we are all, every one of us, a little bit crazy to a degree. The problem is that it is taboo to admit that you have any deficiencies in the area of your mind. So though it is so nobody will care to admit it. Even so there are more psychiatrists in America than the rest of the world combined.